

World Trade 100 and SMC³ Announce the 2012 Alliance Award Winners

This first-ever award recognizes alliances in high-performing supply chains that are driving results. Attention is focused on why and how the alliance was formed, the roles of the various partners, and the results attained by the close collaboration and cooperation represented by the alliance.

"The winners of The Alliance award exhibited a strong recognition of the benefits of a more holistic view of their supply chains and the vendors, suppliers, customers, and peers who are partners in driving positive results which benefit all of the partners," said Sarah Harding, Group Publisher of World Trade 100. Danny Slaton, SMC³ executive vice president, added, "These 16 elite award winners represent a great cross-section of supply chain organizations. Their successes illustrate just how important collaboration is to supply chain optimization. We look forward to sharing their best practice approaches at The Alliance awards ceremony during Jump Start 2013."
